

CERMAK 'DANGEROUS', PHYSICIANS DECLARE

Noted Heart Specialist Says Mayor "Breathing in Gasps"

SLOWLY IS SLIPPING

Pneumonia added to Prevailing Maladies

JACKSON MEMORIAL HOSPITAL, MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 27.—Mayor Cermak has been "slipping slowly but progressively since Saturday," it was said today by Dr. Walter Wile, noted heart specialist. The physician said the steady climb in the mayor's respiration was "Alarming" and "dangerous." The mayor, he added, is "breathing in gasps" and the oxygen tent "is not accomplishing its purpose."

JACKSON MEMORIAL HOSPITAL, Miami, Fla., Feb. 27.—Mayor Anton J. Cermak's respiration went to the unprecedented mark of 40 today as he battled the ravages of his latest complication—pneumonia. Although his physicians saw "nothing in the immediate future that would warrant the idea of expecting a crisis" and expressed the belief Cermak would live through the day, they were very grave and admittedly had "lost some hope" when they issued the following bulletin at 10:45 a. m. (E. S. T.).

"Mayor Cermak's condition continues unchanged during the past twelve hours. After 2 a. m. he had a restful sleep. His mental condition is clear and unclouded. Temperature 101, pulse 128, respiration 40."

NOW DANGEROUS

The highest previous respiratory mark was 36. It had been said by the physicians that 40 would be a "dangerous" mark. They explained its presence after reading the bulletin by saying:

"It indicates that more work is being thrown on the balance of the lung. This balances the non-functioning consolidated area of the lung."

The doctors, Frederick Tice, Karl A. Meyer, Walter Wile, Hamburg, and Frank Jirka of Chicago, and J. R. Snyder, E. Sterling Nichol and T. W. Hutson of Miami, said they had not examined the lung to determine if the area of pneumonia had increased. They also ascribed the higher respiration to frequent changes in the Mayor's position in bed. This is done in an attempt to prevent spread of pneumonia.

Immediately after they read the bulletin the physicians began to give Cermak an injection of glucose fluid. They doubted that they would give him another blood transfusion soon.

DOZEN MALADIES

The terrific strain of nearly a dozen maladies is tearing to shreds the mayor's resistance to death.

The obstacles to Mayor Cermak's recovery, and some conception of the courageous battle his indomitable will and fighting heart have caused him to wage, are realized when the diseases he has had piled upon him are realized.

To the ravages of the bullet wound have been added a badly damaged heart muscle, enteritis, colitis, kidney trouble, cyanosis, parotitis, traumatic pleurisy, and now pneumonia.

War On White's Tax Plan Seen

COLUMBUS, Feb. 27.—War on Governor George White's proposed nuisance taxes will break out tomorrow in the 90th general assembly in an onslaught which will be led by Democratic insurgents.

Ohio legislators served advance notice to that effect today as they returned to the state capital from a week-end recess with a determination to end their fight over a prohibition referendum in a hurry and push taxation to the fore.

A series of public hearings on the governor's proposed taxes on malt, amusements and soft drinks will be opened tomorrow night, a few hours after the House of Representatives is scheduled to vote on the Smolka resolution, already passed by the Senate, to provide for a referendum next November on state prohibition repeal.

THREE HEARINGS

The governor's program will be placed under fire for three successive nights. The hearings will be held before the house taxation committee of which Rep. W. M. Goodwin (D), of Hamilton, is chairman.

Democratic insurgents of the senate, including William H. Herndon of Norwalk, Daniel J. Gunsett of Van Wert, Paul Yoder of Dayton and Marvin C. Harrison of Cleveland, prepared today to take the lead in the committee campaign against the nuisance taxes. All but Gunsett demand the enactment of a sales tax. Gunsett advocates an income tax.

Governor White's program has already been subjected to criticism in public speeches and statements by manufacturers who would be hit by the proposed 10 to 20 per cent levies on $20,000, 000 in new revenues, most of which would be spent for relief.

Eighty-one out of 125 votes will be required in the house tomorrow to pass the Smolka resolution, and such wet leaders as Rep. John F. McCrystal (D), of Sandusky, were confident today that such a total can be mustered.

Trial is Faced

Francis "Cappy" Hoover of near Ashville, was to be taken to the Athens state hospital Monday afternoon by Sheriff Charles H. Radcliff where a 30-day test of his sanity will be made.

Chienping, Important Chinese Stronghold, Ob- ject of Drive

RESISTANCE STRONG

Decisive Contests Are Thought Near

BULLETIN

LONDON, Feb. 27.—The British government has decided to lay an embargo on the exportation of arms to both China and Japan. Mr. John Simon, foreign secretary, announced in the House of Commons this afternoon.

PEIPING, Feb. 27.—With 1,000 Chinese and 600 Japanese casualties reported, heavy fighting was under way today in the interior of Jehol province.

Apparently finding themselves balked by stiff Chinese resistance in their assault on Lingnan, the gateway to Lingyuan, the Japanese embarked upon more costly tactics and started to push toward Chienping, an important stronghold along the Chinese second line of defense.

The bulk of the casualties occurred in the vicinity of Polishih-men, which the Japanese right flank attacked in an attempt to clear the way to Lingnan. Reports at 3 p. m. today stated that the right flank attack had lessened, while the left flank assault was intensified, indicating an attempted drive toward Chienping.

The fall of Chienping would seriously embarrass the Chinese defenses at Chingfeng.

NEW HOLLAND, ASHVILLE RETAIN TITLES

Briggs, Alone, Outscores Walnut 5; Ashville Boys Annex Consolation Tilt

Hobbs' Team Invincible In Winning 49-24 Although Walnut Team Never Quits; Ashville Girls' Defense Too Strong For Walnut as Pickaway Loses In Thrilling Two Overtime Contest.

New Holland's crack basketball team took off its wraps Saturday night and displayed a marvelous brand of basketball to turn back the ever-present threat of the Walnut-twp offensive by a score of 49-24 to win the county boys' championship for the second successive year.

Ashville girls almost doubled the score on the Walnut-twp team to again win county honors. The score was 23-13.

Ashville boys outought Pickaway-twp in two overtime periods to win the third place position by a 37-23 score.

Briggs did the annual Pickaway-twp basketball tournament reach its conclusion before another capacity crowd at C. A. C. gym. Five fights the tourney was staged and five nights the hall was packed.

The tournament will go down in county court history as one of the most hardfought and most successful ever seen. Trophies were awarded New Holland boys and Ashville girls by D. L. Buchanan, superintendent of county schools, and basketball balls were given to Walnut boys and girls, runners-up.

FAVORED TEAMS WIN

Most cage fans favored New Holland to carry off the title by virtue of the class of basketball the boys coached by Warren Hobbs showed when it was most needed. New Holland in defeating Monroe, 39-13, Salt Creek, 39-18, and Ashville, 19-14 did nothing spectacular but the strength was ever present if needed. Saturday night basketball county boys' tournament, it would have been too bad for any other team in the tournament, too, to be pitted against that aggregation.

New Holland's style of basketball completely baffled the hard-fighting Walnut-twp boys and before many fans had awakened to the fact that the final game was underway New Holland had grabbed a big lead. Charlie Brown started the scoring for Walnut with an action shot shortly after the opening whistle but that apparently ired the New Hollanders as they went into action.

Two passes from Louis to Hickie accounted for goals then Gene Briggs started to break loose. He scored six baskets on three pivot plays then tallied again while Hickie connected once more before the first period ended 17-6 for New Holland.

HALF 31 TO 8

The second quarter was a slaughter with Briggs scoring five more goals all from under the basket. Dunkel's basket was all Walnut could get in the second canto. The period closed 31-8.

New Holland's passing and shooting was deadly. Very few passes went astray and Charlie Brown, who the night before had successfully stopped Paul Wilson for Pickaway, was unable to lay a hand on New Holland's will-o-the-wisp, Gene Briggs, who scored eight baskets from under the hoop. We doubt if any tournament guard could have stopped Briggs Saturday night; he was hot.

Walnut's offensive was held to only two points in the closing period while Ashville scored six. Pauline Reese did most of Ashville's scoring with seven field goals and a free throw. Kuhlwein and Hiles both were content to pass to the South Bloomfield red-head, whose fighting spirit reached its climax in this game. Both teams played well but Ashville, as was expected, was just too strong. Lynch starred on the Walnut-twp defense.

CONSOLATION SENSATIONAL

Now comes what proved to be the feature game of the evening with Ashville boys carrying third place from the Pickaway-twp team in two overtime sessions. The score was 37-23.

The game reached climaxes and anti-climaxes several times with Wellington, slender Ashville forward, being the center of activity as you shall learn in a few minutes.

Pickaway, with Rhoades back in the lineup, started off in nice style and held a 12-6 lead at the conclusion of the first period. Ashville picked up considerably in the second session to trail by only one point at half-time. Pickaway counted five points against three in the third period leading 22-19 as the final session started. Play was hot and heavy with Walnut-twp never admitting defeat although starting it in the face, came out fighting in the third period and outscored New Holland 10 to six. Kaiser dropped in three goals and Bartholomew and Wayne Brown each scored. Ralph Dunkel, W. B. Griffith's captain played Briggs in this session and prevented New Holland passes from reaching the flash. In the fourth period, however, Briggs again turned on and scored three more goals.

The defeat was a shocking one for Walnut-twp although its advent into the finals was more or less a surprise. Walnut had played only mediocre ball during the season, losing to Jackson and Pickaway, but the team which entered the floor for the tournament was full of inspiration. Deercreek twp was easily defeated by Walnut then something happened and Walnut trounced Pickaway to enter the finals. New Holland was just too smart for the Griffith boys.

BRIGGS SCORES 26

Gene Briggs, of course, was New Holland's star with 12 field goals and two free throws. When an individual scored 26 points in a county tournament before is beyond recollection. Hickie played excellent ball and Joe Louis, Pete Davis and Jennings all contributed to the New Holland success. Morris, a substitute, played neat ball.

The contest was very cleanly played no man leaving on person and although Hickie had three the first half, Walnut's entire team committed only six personal fouls while New Holland had eight.

Forced to play tight basketball by a strong defensive Walnut-twp team, Mrs. Morrison's Ashville girls showed their colors by crashing through to victory. Walnut-twp played a good game of basketball especially defensively but it was unable to score through the tightly woven Ashville defense of M. and C. Reese and Hay.

DEFENSE TOO TIGHT

Walnut was able to connect for only three field goals, Dorothy Updyke counting those. Miss DeLong tallied seven free throws to make up the team's quota.

Ashville held only a two point lead at the end of the first period which was featured by little shooting. The score was 4-2. The half ended 9-5 and the third period was hotter the session closing 17-11.

Walnut's offensive was held to only two points in the closing period while Ashville scored six. Pauline Reese did most of Ashville's scoring with seven field goals and a free throw. Kuhlwein and Hiles both were content to pass to the South Bloomfield red-head, whose fighting spirit reached its climax in this game. Both teams played well but Ashville, as was expected, was just too strong. Lynch starred on the Walnut-twp defense.

ASHVILLE TRAILING BY 31-30 WITH SECONDS TO PLAY
Walton got the ball and broke loose for the basket but was fouled just as he started to shoot. Before he could walk to the free throw line the gun sounded ending the game. He hesitated a moment with the outcome of the scrap in his own hands. One successful shot was needed to tie and two would win the contest.

TIE AT 31-ALL

He calmly dropped the first shot through the net but missed the second.

A three minute overtime period was called and Wellington crashed through to count a goal for Ashville before Dunkel. Pickaway guard, hit a long shot. The period ended in a tie and another three-minute session was called.

Wellington again scored but his two points were wiped out when Paul Wilson was fouled while shooting and scored both shots.

With less than a minute to play Wellington again dribbled in from the corner with the goal that clinched the basketball game.

Such a sensational game had not been seen on the club floor in several years. As a result of the victory Ashville will take in the district class B tournament at Westerville next week-end.

Wellington and Wilson each scored 17 points to lead their teams.

This contest was exceedingly hardfought and was probably the roughest of the tournament. Ford, of Ashville left the game on foul and so did Estell for Pickaway while Wellington and Morrison each had three fouls and as did Wilson and Brown for Pickaway.

MIAMI Fla., Feb. 27.—Dizzy Vance, balking at the $5000 contract offered him by the St. Louis Cardinals said today he had received two requests to attend a conference for a conference with club officials.

"I think the next move is up to the Cardinals," said the former Brooklyn mound ace. "I'm busy with my hotel in Hongkong and I can't be bothered with any $5000 offer."

Vance believes he will be traded to the Giants, Cubs or Reds.

King and McMillen Help Herald in Selection of Best Players

WINNERS FAVORED

Davis Victor in Center Berth Contest

Difficulty was encountered in selecting a youth to fill only one position when Bob King and Bus McMillen, tournament officials, and The Herald studied the various athletes who took part in the tournament ending Saturday night. That was at center where several tossers played on such a par that selection was difficult. The nod was given to Pete Davis, New Holland tip-off man, after careful consideration because of his all-around ability. Davis's scoring was not the bright feature of his play although he played havoc with scoring hopes Friday night by scoring eight points. His passing, his "feeding," his jumping and his defense ability won the coveted position for him over Charles Brown of Walnut, Otis Ford of Ashville and Paul Wilson of Pickaway.

FORWARDS EASY

All-Tournament forward choices were easy. Gene Briggs of New Holland and Wink Wellington of Ashville were named without a contest. These two boys were outstanding on their respective teams. It was Briggs' 26 points against Walnut that clinched the tournament and Wellington's great play in two overtime periods against Pickaway that won for his team. Briggs scored 53 points in the four games he played and Wellington tallied 51.

Wilson of Pickaway was the only other man who might have been named to the first team for either center or forward but his inability to aid his team defensively cost him a first team position.

He scored 52 points during the tournament to prove his offensive ability, but of those 52 points he did very little of the "ball-digging" himself taking passes from his more active teammates to score.

Joe Louis of New Holland and Wayne Brown of Walnut-twp were given the nod for the guard posts with the former—without a doubt the smartest youth on the floor—being named captain. Louis' scoring was not high during the tournament but his generalship, his coolness, passing and defensive work meant a great deal to his team.

Although held to six points by New Holland, Brown was the best scoring guard in the tourney. Brown, playing only three games because his team drew a bye in the first round scored 42 points, an average of 14 per contest.

Wilson with Jim Hartman, Salt Creek-twp flash, were named forwards on the second team with Charles Brown of Walnut at center. Jennings, clever New Holland defensive man, and Ralph Dunkel, Walnut captain and floor star were named guards with Dunkel named captain of the second team.

Ashville monopolized the girls' team with four positions while Darby-twp and Walnut-twp each won one berth. Pauline Reese was chosen center and captain and M. Reese and Anna Hay were named guards, all from the Ashville team. Skinner, red-headed Darby-twp player who would have been a "standout on another team," is now "from jumping center to forward and Agnes Lynch, big Walnut guard, won the other position.

No girls' second team was named because there were only four teams in the tournament.

As Corbett Captured Title

BUCKEYES FACING CRUCIAL CONTEST

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—Spurred on by visions of a tie with Ohio State, for first honors in the Western conference basketball race, Northwestern University's quintet tonight will battle the Indiana five here at Evanston.

Six other Big Ten teams will play during the evening as the title race rapidly approaches a climax. Ohio State, handed its first defeat Saturday night by Iowa, engages Purdue at Lafayette.

Illinois meets the third place Iowa team at Iowa City, and Minnesota plays at Michigan.

Inasmuch as Purdue was beaten by only one point on Ohio State's floor earlier in the season, the Hoosiers are conceded an even chance of giving the Buckeyes another setback.

Northwestern, in second place, had a hard time downing Wisconsin, 80 to 28, and consequently Indiana may cause the Northwestern five further trouble to-night.

ART BEATTY HOT

Jaggy Davis High Scorer In Tournament.

Jackson-twp alumni basketball players won the first Pickaway-co Medlay tournament Saturday afternoon in the C. A. C. gym in a thrilling game with the Circleville M. E. church team. The final score was 34-33.

Jackson won the finals after defeating Tarilton 36-22 earlier in the afternoon. The M. E. team defeated the United Brethren aggregation 32-31 in a hot over-time contest to get into the finals.

In a consolation game the Morris U. B. team defeated Emmitt's Chapel 29-13.

The final game was a hot one with the lead alternating. Jackson took the lead in the first period, 6-2, but trailed at the half 16-14. Jackson led 24-21 at the end of the third period.

BEATTY HIGH MAN

Art Beatty was the big noise for the winning team with seven field goals and two free throws. Davis scored 12 points for the M. E. team.

Awards made at the conclusion of the tournament were to Loring Davis, high point man, Boyce Parks, most valuable player; Art Beatty, best forward; F. Brown of Emmitt's Chapel, best guard, and Van Zant of Morris U. B. best foul shot.

The tournament was a big success and was made possible through the efforts of E. C. Carpenter, Pickaway-co coach and principal.

Carpenter and Gerald Hanley officiated the games.

TIGERS MEET DELAWARE '5'

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

The tournament is ended and right now we're telling you to watch Ashville next season.

Al Kauber loses two good men, Berry and Graham, but he has returning Wink Wellington, Otis Ford and Dick Morrison. Keep it under your hat, Ashville's going to be tough.

Walnut's team will be hurt considerably by graduation and New Holland loses its first six men, including Briggs, Hickie, Davis, Louis, Jennings and Morris.

But Warren Hobbs isn't crying about losing these men, he has Lanman, big center, back—the lad is only a freshman now and 14 year old—he stands six feet two or three, what a man he'll be when he grows up.

Most of the best of basketball teams will be available, so will Vincent, the last of a long line of basketball players who goes back to his grandfather for his red hair, Mace, another good athlete, and several others will be back.

Pickaway loses practically its whole team and Jackson loses several stars while Salt Creek must do a lot of rebuilding. Next year's far, far away however.

RIGHT NOW'S A GOOD TIME TO CONGRATULATE BRICE CONNELL, DARBY-TWP SUPERINTENDENT, WHO MANAGED THE TOURNAMENT.

MR. CONNELL PROVED HIS EFFICIENCY IN EVERY WAY, HIS ALIDES, MR. ERSKINE, OF FISCAL - TIME-KEEPER, AND MR. REDMAN, OFFICIAL SCORER, WERE ALSO EFFICIENT AND DESERVING OF C

Buy Now . . . for Prosperity

WE HAVE MADE THE START LET'S KEEP GOING

A last continuous reciting of the lesson of self help plans to the community seems to be bearing some fruit. The mercantile return indicate an upturn which should be continued in There is an absence of away from home buying which speaks well for the citizenry here who have given the large bulk of their trade to their home merchants and in that manner enable the money made in the community to be left here and not carried away to enrich some other community.

That ought to speak loud enough for even the deafest person to hear and it should be a renewed inspiration for Home buying by all.

We can not hope to have our Pickaway County communities to advance, yes even stand still unless we give our business men the support which will keep them going and if we do not keep them going we shall very soon find them gone away to other places.

One so often hears women kind speaking of wonderful bargains obtainable in Columbus or Cincinnati or Dayton or some other city and her enthusiasm enlists other women to emulate her in buying goods in those places but most often none of them have gone over the stocks in local stores to learn what is offered here or if not offered whether it is obtainable here. In nearly every instance these same goods at equal alluring prices can be secured right here at home and then if any mistakes or errors are made the home merchant willingly and readily make them good whereas if they are purchased elsewhere being a stranger and out of personal contact with that foreign merchant the error is left in the hands of the buyer to correct.

So one can at once see that there is a greater advantage in buying at home than abroad.

If you look over the list of offers made on this page you will find nearly every human want listed in goods or service for your enjoyment and advantage.

Why should it be necessary with such an army to go elsewhere? There is no reason at all. You know these merchants and service men. You know they are men of integrity and who stand ready to serve you in any way possible within their lines. You know or ought to know that they will even go out of their way to get what you want.

All they want is the chance to serve you. Give it to them. You have begun to loosen up in this direction and you should keep it going. Let's make our own community the center of our actions in buying.

A Loss Is Not An "Investment"

BALANCING the federal budget, through a new system of accounting under which all outlays for so-called permanent improvements and emergencies would be segregated in an extraordinary budget leaving only current costs to be covered by current revenue, is analogous to some of those paper profits of the boom days. The budget would be balanced on paper only.

Private corporations charge all improvements off to capital investment but that doesn't pay for them any more than charging the R. F. C. farm board funds off to "permanent improvements" would obviate the raising of revenue for those purposes. The government did as corporations do—borrowed the money—but didn't come within $2,000,000,000 of balancing its budget.

There is some validity to the argument in so far as it is applied to self-liquidating loans and bona fide investments on which the government will get a profit but these represent an infinitesimal part of the national deficit. All R. F. C. loans are supposed to be but some will prove not to be. The farm board fund proved anything but a capital investment.

Governments cannot hope to balance their budgets by capitalizing pure liabilities as if they were assets and by issuing bonds against them on the theory that they are analogous to the investment of funds by a private corporation in a new factory or railroad which actually pays for itself.

Would not such a system of federal accounting give a false sense of security to the unwary and a specious argument to the spender?

Truck drivers may have 12-year-old mentalities but they can argue and fight like 30.

Farmer's Viewpoint

AGRICULTURAL sections of the Shannon committee's report do not meet with the approval of the organized professional friends of the farmer. Fourteen organizations have expressed their dissatisfaction in writing.

Their chief complaint is that the committee listened to dealer and speculator interests instead of taking the testimony of farmers and cooperatives.

But farmers and cooperatives told the committee that:

Congress pays too much attention to the job-seeking parasites who call themselves farm leaders and represent themselves as speaking for American agriculture.

Congress gave to the farmers in the farm board a form of socialism and communism they did not want.

Federal meddling under the agricultural marketing act created additional and unnecessary facilities, operated them at a loss and demoralized merchandising customs to the detriment of the farmer, legitimate established independent operator and the taxpayer.

Ninety per cent of the farmers want the farm board abolished.

TROOP 107

The regular meeting was called to order Friday at 7 p. m. by Scoutmaster Haecker. Edward England led in saying the Scout Law. The roll call was taken, dues collected, and minutes read. Inspection was held by the Jr. Asst. Scoutmaster.

Scoutmaster Haecker told us that he had received information from headquarters saying that we are to build a tower during the last act of the Scout Circus, which is to be held April 21 and 22. This feat will be presented both nights, after which a Scout will ascend it and wave "Old Glory" as the official closing.

The Cobra patrol won the second patrol coming in second. The Cobra's had little opposition.

Important announcements were made and discussed. Dave Jackson closed the meeting by leading in the Scout Benediction.

The troop hiked to the "State House" Sunday afternoon. There were 17 Scouts, two officials, and the committeeman present.

SYNOPSIS

It is the year 1690. The "Centaur" sailing from the West Indies for England is captured by the cut-throat Tom Leach, who, on board his vessel, "The Black Swan," has long terrorized ships on the Spanish Main. Passengers aboard the "Centaur" are Priscilla Harradine, daughter of the late Sir John Harradine, Captain General of the Leeward Isles; Major Sands, Sir John's middle-aged assistant, who hopes to marry Priscilla; and Monsieur Charles de Bernis, gallant, young Frenchman. De Bernis was a lieutenant of the notorious buccaneer, Henry Morgan, who reformed to enter the service of his King and rid the seas of pirates. Morgan has offered a reward for the capture of Leach. After seizing the "Centaur," Leach murders the captain and crew. The passengers are spared a like fate through De Bernis' wit. He introduces Priscilla as his wife and the Major as his brother-in-law. He then tells the pirate chief a convincing story about his leaving Morgan to search for Leach and enlist his aid in capturing a Spanish plate fleet worth a king's ransom. It is agreed that De Bernis is to take command of the "Centaur" and lead Leach in "The Black Swan" to the treasure. Major Sands, who dislikes De Bernis because of Priscilla's interest in the Frenchman, believes the Frenchman to be in league with Leach. De Bernis assures Priscilla and the skeptical Major that they are in no immediate danger. Pierre, De Bernis' servant, warns his master that Leach intends to double-cross him and not give him his share of the loot. De Bernis suggests that "The Black Swan" be careened to make her more seaworthy for their coming encounter with the Spanish plate fleet. Leach consents against his will. They head for the Albuquerque Keys, an ideal spot to that ship-scouring job. Though stern and reserved in all matters concerning his command of the "Centaur," the diplomatic De Bernis, at times, would also unbend and fraternize with the men, laughing and jesting with them, thereby increasing their admiration for him. Priscilla expresses her gratitude to De Bernis for his consideration of her, but the pompous Major is unappreciative of the fact that the Frenchman saved his life.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

"Is that not enough for us? With that side to consider, would a generous mind consider any other?"

The asperity of her tone pulled the Major up sharply. This, he perceived, would not do at all. Trouble and difficulty enough arose out of the events. He must certainly not allow them to jeopardize those dearest hopes of his, which had been blossoming with promise of so rich a fruition. He must remember that women were curious creatures, addicted to eccentricities of vision, allowing emotional influences to deflect the light of reason. There was no prevailing with them by hard common-sense alone. It provoked their hostility. He saw signs of this in Priscilla, and unless he changed his course to humour her, unless he addressed himself to her emotions, rather than to her intelligence, which he perceived to be dormant, the argosy of his hopes might founder under him in these very difficult waters.

He assumed an air of gentle, patient melancholy.

"Dear Priscilla, do you realize, I wonder, the wrong you do me?" He sighed. "You find me wanting in generosity. You are right. And yet

"Are you" ... she choked a little ... "are you making love to me?"

how far from right. You are only halfway down my feelings. There are depths you have not suspected. Not suspected, stab me! You imagine, perhaps, that concern for myself is to be found down there; that this makes me impatient—ungracious, as you say. My dear! For myself I care nothing. For myself I could be gracious enough to this man. I should consider only that he has preserved my life. But my thought is all for you. All for you, stab me! If I am impatient, ungracious, it is because of my concern for you; for the distress, the anxieties, the fears that are afflicting you. How can I be patient in the face of this? Blimey, Priscilla! How can I?"

Her indignation melted before this display of noble concern which held no thought of self. The fundamental sweetness of her nature welled up to make her ashamed.

"I am sorry, Bart. I am very stupid sometimes. Forgive me, dear." She held out a hand to him in appeal.

He came nearer, gently smiling, and took it between both his own. He was suddenly inspired by the note of tenderness which penitence had brought into her voice. Dimly he recalled a line heard in a play, a line written by some poet or other, one of those absurd rangers who expressed themselves in stilted, pompous phrases, in which sometimes, Major Sands confessed to himself, one found a grain of sense amid a deal of nonsense. He marvelled at the queer opportuneness with which the line came now to the surface of his memory, not perceiving that it was his own common-place thought which borrowed for itself the majestic robe of that expression: "There is a tide in the affairs of man which taken at the flood leads on to fortune."

Here now was the tide running strongly in his favour. Let him take it at the flood.

"My dear! What man in my place, loving you as I do, could have any other thought?"

"Dear Bart, I understand. I should have understood before." She looked up with soft entreaty in her candid eyes.

He stroked the hand he held. Gently by that hand he began to draw her nearer. She suffered him to have his way.

"Do you suppose that it is easy for me to have patience, with such circumstances surrounding the woman I love?"

His tone had sunk to a fond, crooning murmur. Suddenly she seemed to freeze where she stood, almost in his arms. Her breath quickened, the colour ebbed from her face, and the candid eyes, that a moment ago had been so tender, held only alarm.

"What are you saying, Bart?" Her right hand was withdrawn from between his fondling palms; her left pushed him gently away. "Are you ... she choked a little. "Are you making love to me?"

In profound dismay he spread his hands. "My dear!" he cried, protesting vaguely.

"Oh! How could you? How could you at such a time?"

What he understood from this came mercifully to temper his dismay. It was the time that was ill-chosen. He had been deceived, then. The tide, after all, was not yet at the flood. Her mind, distraught by peril, could hold no thought of anything else. He had blundered by precipitancy. He had startled her. It only remained to beat a retreat in good order, and await a more propitious season for his next advance.

"At such a time!" he echoed. "But—stab me!—it is just that. It is the time ... the dreadful events ... these terrible circumstances that quicken my tenderness, my urgent wish to have you know that you have beside you a man ready, as I have said before, to give his life for you. If I did not owe this to my affection for you, blimey, there was my friendship for your father, my sense of duty to his memory. What is there here to dismay you?"

The trouble in her mind—reflected in her eyes—was hardly lessened; but it had changed its course. Her glance faltered, confused, she turned away, and moved to the stern-ports through which the sunlight was now flooding.

MOVIES

AT THE GRAND

The authenticity and absolute faithfulness to detail in the strange and unusual settings and picturesque atmosphere of state prison camps shown in "I Am a Fugitive from a Chain Gang," which is on the screen at the Grand, is vouched for by Director Mervyn LeRoy.

Mr. LeRoy had vivid descriptions from the biographical novel of Robert E. Burns, the escaped convict, on which novel the Warner Bros. picture is based, to work from, but not content with this he engaged Jack Miller, a former chain gang prisoner, and J. H. Sullivan, for years a guard in the particular prison camp, to act as technical advisors.

"I not only was able to make perfect sets from their descriptions, but I got right into the atmosphere through them," said LeRoy. These two men checked on every detail as we went along, both for physical appearance and the setting of the concepts they advised. I also had the advantage of two view points, that of a guard and that of a former prisoner."

AT THE CLIFTONA

The press agent, sometimes known as a publicity man, and when better paid as a public relations counsel, is not a modern development.

With the Paris Colosseum, the leading show house, in the fall-out, the press agent, in the week by week martyrs to the show, the box-office was built up through press agents. Their bulldozers penetrated the countryside, enticing the customers for miles around.

The earliest publicity gags on record were performed by martyrs. They sat around on spikes for weeks at a time, swathed their bodies in chains, assumed reluctance for years, or fasted for unprecedented lengths of time. This form of publicity gag still survives. Witness Mahatma Gandhi: he dons a loin cloth, does a silence and hunger endurance test, and snarcs more front page publicity than any movie or stage queen that ever lived, including Cleopatra.

The late Harry Reichbach was generally credited to be the most spectacular press agent. Broadway ever knew him. "The Half-Naked Truth" coming to the Cliftona.

Lee Tracy portrays a Reichenbach type in "The Half-Naked Truth." Lupe Velz plays a carnival side show dancer whom he cleverly skyrockets to fame via ballyhoo. Frank Morgan, Shirley Chambers, Eugene Pallette and Robert McKenzie are also cast.

Maybe it just doesn't take much to discourage a race that can feel overpowered by a little ball into a hole.

Coming to The Cliftona Theatre

Neglecting
Tumor Is Dangerous

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health
New York City.

A REMARKABLE collection of strange and unusual cases of tumors was recently shown under the auspices of the New York Academy of Medicine. There were excellent photographs which clearly showed the different types of tumors. It was a remarkable exhibit and of tremendous instructive value to the physicians who saw it.

Today I want to tell you about one of the interesting features included in this exhibit. It was a case of Von Recklinghausen's disease.

"Von Recklinghausen's disease" is indeed a difficult name to pronounce. But it is easier to remember than "multiple neuro-fibromatosis" which is the medical name for this affliction.

The disease is characterized by nodules or small swellings. These are found in the skin or beneath the skin. They may be on the hand or on the face, but more often they are distributed all over the body.

Von Recklinghausen's Disease

At times the tumors may hang from the skin. In advanced cases, the skin is stretched and loose. When the nodules are found on the scalp, large folds of skin hang down over the ears or over the face. It is a strange and unusual affliction.

The cause of Von Recklinghausen's disease is unknown. It is a congenital or hereditary disease. But the nodules may not become conspicuous until late in life. The progress of the disease is slow. The swellings gradually increase in size and new ones appear elsewhere on the body. There is a peculiar discoloration of the skin around the nodules.

I am glad to say that these particular tumors are rarely cancerous. Tumors are divided into two classes, benign and malignant. A malignant tumor contains cancer cells. A benign tumor may resemble a malignant tumor, but is slower in growth, and has no cancer cells. Von Recklinghausen's disease is an example of a benign tumor.

Don't Ignore Swellings

When there are few swellings treatment is easy. The nodules are removed by a simple operation. This operation can be performed under a local anesthetic.

In advanced cases the swellings are spread all over the body and operation is not advisable. However, these cases show excellent results when treated with X-ray or radium. The choice of treatment can only be determined by the physician.

Unfortunately, most sufferers from Von Recklinghausen's disease neglect the affliction. They seek relief after the swellings have grown to a large size and become unsightly, hindering them in their work. In addition, the general health of the afflicted person is undermined and he becomes susceptible to infectious diseases and other ailments.

When in doubt regarding any unusual swelling or tumor talk with your doctor. He will give you the necessary advice.

WORLD FINANCIAL COLLAPSE

WOOSTER STATION'S WORK IN LIMELIGHT

Agricultural Experiment Work Saves Farmers Millions of Dollars.

Applying scientific methods to solving important agricultural problems so that Ohio farmers may save millions of dollars, the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station is assisting farmers to economize in their production methods, according to officials in the agricultural extension service at the Ohio State university.

Some of the achievements of the experiment station in putting the production of agricultural products on a more economical basis are found in recent facts presented in a radio broadcast on the Farm Night program from WEAO.

Before the Station discovered the need for lime, there was practically no lime used in this state. Today, the few farmers in eastern Ohio who are not using lime advertise this fact by their fields of red soil instead of red clover.

The Station has been a leading factor in the state-wide rejuvenation of orchards through the use of fertilizers, efficient spraying, pruning, thinning, etc. It has contributed to the rational and economical feeding of all kinds of livestock, pointing the way through the use of silage and home-grown feeds to the cheapening of the dairy ration. The station has shown the greater profit obtained by feeding an acre of corn as silage rather than as shelled corn or stove.

Also, the Station has contributed to the poultry industry in the all-mash ration for laying hens, the use of legume hays in place of green feeds, and all-night lights for laying hens. It has developed and introduced new varieties of farm and horticultural crops which have had wide distribution over the state.

The agricultural experiment station's findings in the proper placement of fertilizers in planting corn have been adopted by farmers in many states and have caused all the leading manufacturers to change their planters.

Production of by-product feeds for farm livestock is smaller than for nine years.

The time to control peach leaf curl, a disease that exacted heavy toll in Ohio last year, is before the trees show signs of life in the spring.

No seed oats should be planted this spring without first being tested for germination. This can be done by wetting a pair of blotters and placing 200 kernels between them. The blotters are then placed between pie pans. After the seeds germinate, count the sprouts and compute the percentage.

BATTLE RAGES

been quartered at Suiching, attempted to advance on the main Chinese positions along the Shanhankwan-Lingyuan line in the southern part of Jehol.

The Japanese advance was checked when the invading troops encountered a narrow pass between high cliffs which formed a veritable death trap.

Latest advices from the battle area state the Chinese have five divisions of troops strung out between Shanhankwan and Lingyuan. From Peiping, word came that all officers of the Chinese forces routed from Chaoyang have been ordered executed by Marshall Chang Hsueh-Liang, military commander in North China, unless they recapture this vital stronghold.

Prize money was reportedly promised to the Chinese troops if they are successful, it was said. Advices from the front stated Japanese airmen bombed 2,000 Chinese soldiers retreating from Yimatiyungtu, and also another unit of Chinese at near Lingyuan pass.

FAMILIES LEAVE CITY

With the Japanese troops pressing forward toward Jehol City with apparently irresistible force, it was reported Governor Tang Yulin's family at the provincial capital had fled to Peiping with other prominent families, fearing imminent capture of the city.

It was also stated that Chih-feng was a scene of confusion as the Japanese troops commanded by General Mogi approached to launch an assault on the town. General Chang Wen-hui, commander of the first cavalry brigade there, was reported to have deserted the Chinese colors and joined the Manchukuo forces.

A severe engagement at Hsing-chiang was reported. Japanese troops supported by ten armored cars demolished the town and killed several hundred Chinese, routing a force of 10,000.

The Japanese pushed ten miles beyond this point, advices said.

PULPIT RAFFLE

GARDNER, Mass.—Ministers of 18 churches in Gardner and vicinity, struck on a novel scheme to promote the spirit of co-operation between the churches. They drew from a hat their assignments to preach a Sunday sermon. None was allowed his own church and no one except the preacher himself knew to what church he was assigned. It created a spirit of suspense among the parishioners.
